

ANALYSIS OF AREA NINE-HOLE GOLF COURSES

CONCLUSION: The Ridgeline Golf Course was closed in 2006 because it could no longer sustain a viable economic return. Chief among the challenges it faced were the following:

- Not subsidized, therefore the course was not financially viable when usage declined almost 50% from historical peaks.
- Not centrally located nor connected to a major amenity such as a hotel or resort.
- Course rehabilitation and upgrades were cost-prohibitive and unfeasible given site constraints.
